1. NAUMBURG (J89), 14.18 November 1949

a. Summary: NAUSEBURG personnel are almost all quite young, 17-18 years old. Older men allegedly have been sent on leave, groups of 30-40 passing through the JONA-BEST transient station. It is not known whether or not these men actually are on leave or are being redeployed to the USSR. There are no armored troops in town. Installations are at 75 percent of capacity.

b. Flandern Kaserne: Little vehicle traffic at this barracks, whose various buildings contain a total of 3,600-3,800 men. Of these, about 2,400 wear red shoulder straps (with Guards insignia on some older men), 900 with black straps/red piping (half with artillery insignia), and 300 with black straps.

c. Two 57 mm AT 41 guns were parked in the yard, also 50 trucks [redacted] [redacted] although they were not new. Behind the sheds were 13 pontoons and 6 uncovered amphibious vehicles. Most sheds appeared to contain additional trucks. Parked vehicles: [redacted]

d. [] the Flanders Kaserne may be held by motorized rifle, engineer, and AT units. No armored vehicles were in evidence.

e. Artillerie Kaserne: About 1,500 young troops without branch insignia, of whom about 1,000 wear black shoulder straps/red piping and 500 wear black straps. There was little vehicle traffic. [REDACTED]

f. Hindenburg Kaserne: Approximately 1,200 young troops: 900 with red shoulder straps, 300 with black straps/red piping. Some motorized riflemen also appear to occupy a part of this barracks. Both this and the Artillerie Kaserne appear to be controlled by the same command, judging from vehicle and pedestrian traffic between them.
